

McGregor Boyall Statement on Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking

Modern Slavery Act 2015

Modern slavery is an international crime and a violation of fundamental human rights. It takes various forms, such as slavery, servitude, forced and compulsory labour and human trafficking, all of which have in common the deprivation of a person's liberty by another in order to exploit them for personal or commercial gain.

The Modern Slavery Act 2015 is designed to tackle slavery in the UK and consolidates previous offences relating to trafficking and slavery. The act extends to England and Wales and became law on 26 March 2015.

This statement sets out McGregor Boyall Associates' actions to understand all potential modern slavery risks related to our business and to put in place steps that are aimed at ensuring that there is no slavery or human trafficking in our own business and its supply chains.

As part of recruitment and staffing industry we recognise that we have a responsibility to take a robust approach to slavery and human trafficking. Modern slavery is a criminal activity and a violation of human rights. The deprivation of a person's liberty by another in order to exploit them for personal or commercial gain is unacceptable.

McGregor Boyall operates a zero-tolerance approach to slavery and human trafficking and is absolutely committed to preventing such activity in its corporate activities, and to ensuring that its supply chains are free from slavery and human trafficking.

Clients and Supply Chains

McGregor Boyall places overriding importance on working only with suppliers and clients who meet our own standards of compliance with local legislation, including the Modern Slavery Act 2015, and who place equal importance on their obligations towards eliminating modern slavery that McGregor Boyall does. McGregor Boyall will not work with any organisation that is unable to demonstrate an equal commitment to this subject, irrespective of any statutory obligation to do so.

McGregor Boyall recognises that some of the sectors in which its clients operate will be more susceptible to human trafficking and slavery than others, but we are fully committed to ensuring the highest standards, irrespective of sector. We believe that, in conjunction with rigorous policies implemented by our clients, we can drive out any aspects of human trafficking and slavery from ours and our clients' supply chains. Whenever applicable, McGregor Boyall will identify to its clients any non-compliance with the legislation.

As part of our initiative to identify and mitigate risk we have in place systems to:

- Identify and assess potential risk areas in our supply chains, with our clients and internally;
- Mitigate the risk of slavery and human trafficking occurring in our supply chains and with our clients; and
- Protect whistle blowers.

To support us in our business activities we use a range of suppliers for advertising and candidate sourcing, as well as standard business suppliers such as stationery and technology providers.

McGregor Boyall operates a supplier policy and maintains a preferred supplier list. We conduct due diligence on all suppliers before allowing them to become a preferred supplier. This due diligence includes an online search to ensure that particular organisation has never been convicted of offences relating to modern slavery. Our anti-slavery statement forms part of our contract with all suppliers and they are required to confirm that no part of their business operations contradicts this statement.

In addition to the above, as part of our contract with suppliers, we require that they confirm to us that:

1. They have taken steps to eradicate modern slavery within their business
2. They hold their own suppliers to account over modern slavery
3. (For UK based suppliers) They pay their employees at least the national minimum wage / national living wage (as appropriate)
4. (For international suppliers) They pay their employees any prevailing minimum wage applicable within their country of operations
5. We may terminate the contract at any time should any instances of modern slavery come to light.

Where McGregor Boyall is engaged as a first or second tier supplier we audit such organisations against legislative compliance, including compliance with the Modern Slavery Act, and identify any legislative non-compliance to its clients. McGregor Boyall's Compliance and Pre-employment Screening Team are required to verify a worker's right to work in the relevant country before we can supply their services to clients.

Due Diligence Process

McGregor Boyall ensure strict compliance checks are carried out for all employees and candidates it supplies. We run vigorous checks on each worker to verify their identity and their right to work before supply commences.

As part of our commitment to identify and eradicate slavery and human trafficking, we undertake due diligence on our supply chain network to ensure compliance with legislative obligations; such compliance forms part of our contractual relationship with suppliers.
